

Finest Liner To Become Troop Ship

U. S. Decides to Finish $70,000,000 Vessel for War Purposes in Security Plan Move

Building 3 Others
Troop Carriers Ready by Early Spring Under Contract Terms

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—America's determination to hasten to a ready-for-war footing and stay on it a long, long time was evidenced today by a decision about a ship.

The government has decided to finish as a troopship what was to have been the biggest and finest passenger vessel ever built in this country—the steamship "United States"—880 feet long, 48,000 tons, costing $70,000,000.

This superliner is under construction at Newport News, Va. The scheduled date of completion was the spring of 1952 before the government announced yesterday she'll be turned into a troop transport—probably under a faster construction schedule. Five other passenger ships are being built in this country, and three of those, the President Adams, President Jackson, and President Hayes, also will be completed as troop carriers—probably faster than next spring, as originally contemplated. Each of the three is 536 feet long, 13,000 tons.

These three and the "United States" were selected for conversion at this time "because the work could be done on them with the greatest economy by initiating it early," government maritime authorities said.

With Carry 12,000
The "United States" will get a new name for military use. It will carry 12,000 troops—almost a division. The three "Presidents" also to be renamed, each will carry 2,500 to 3,000. As a luxury liner, the "United States" would have carried 2,000 passengers, only about 200 less than the ocean liner was designed to carry. The Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth.

The government was able to order the conversion of the four ships because it put up much of their cost and let the contractors on behalf of the private lines involved. Those lines are United States Lines, for the "United States," and American President Lines for the others.

The government will "settle" the contracts with the lines, and keep the construction contracts with the builders. Those builders are Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., for the superliner, and New York Shipbuilding Corp., Camden, N. J., for the others.

The three "Presidents" were to cost $10,671,000 each as passenger liners, with the government footing 44 per cent of the bill. The government's share of the superliner's $70,000,000 cost had been set at $42,300,000.

To Get 25 Cargo Ships
Meanwhile, the maritime agencies reported 25 more Victory cargo ships will be taken out of moth ball fleets Monday and repaired so they will be ready for use by the military when and if "further need develop."

Two of the 23 will be taken from the Hudson river fleet.

The newspaper said Ford will start making a "substantial quantity" of engines for the air forces big bomber "just as soon as possible."

State Political Campaigns Will Cost More Than Million

Seven Kelly Jurors In Sheriff's Custody Till Court Monday

When Judge John M. Cashion adjourned County Court Friday afternoon until 10 o'clock Monday there were still only seven jurors on the panel which will hear the testimony on the first degree murder charge against Edward H. Kelly who is charged with having shot to death Mrs. Eloise McHugh last May 22 in Kingston.

During the afternoon session several prospective jurors were examined but none was accepted. The prosecution has now used up 12 of its 30 peremptory challenges while the defendant has used a total of 15.

The jury will be kept in custody of the sheriff over the week-end, being quartered at a local hotel. Prior to the week-end recess Judge Cashion directed that any juror who desired to attend church Sunday would be permitted to attend the church of his or her choice in company with an officer.

Members of the jury thus far selected and seated in the box are: Mrs. Mabel McDole, Ellenville housewife.

Miss Alice E. Henderson, Woodstock retired hospital executive.

Samuel J. Waters, Shandaken, retired New York city fireman.

Adrian Hulse, Wallkill, retired farmer-horse driver.

Lottie Shults, Bearsville, housewife.

Edward F. Brown, Kingston, carpenter.

Any Malone, Sawkill, welfare officer of the town of Kingston.

Jurors who have not yet been called for questioning as well as the jurors already seated were excused until 11 o'clock Monday morning. Court recessed until 10 o'clock Monday morning when an additional panel of 100 prospective jurors will appear and excuses from serving will be heard by the court.

Kelly, the defendant, throughout the selection of the jury has shown no display of nervousness or tension. He comes in court nattily attired in a brown suit and appears to have fully recovered from the effect of a shot which he fired into his head following the alleged shooting of Mrs. McHugh. He frequently consults with his attorney, Charles J. Saccoman or William A. Kelly and Guido Napoletano who are assisting in the defense trial. Questioning of prospective jurors has been conducted by District Attorney Louis G. Brubaker and Assistant District Attorney Vincent G. Connolly alternately in conducting the examination of witnesses.

The judge said he thought only "a comparative handful" of the police are crooked but that "we want to weed out the garden."

Estimate Based on Race Between Lehman and Dulles for U. S. Senate Post

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—By a conservative estimate, it will cost the Democrats and Republicans a combined total of more than one million dollars to conduct their state campaigns this fall. That figure is based on the fact that at least $500,000 was spent last year in a single contest—between Herbert H. Lehman and John Foster Dulles for a seat in the U. S. Senate.

There is no way of telling exactly—or even coming close to—how much the 1950 campaign will cost.

A spokesman at Democratic state headquarters says the amount the Democrats will spend depends upon how much is contributed, and he adds: "That can't be predicted now."

Alger B. Chapman, treasurer of the Republican state committee, says he does not have any readily available figure on which to base an estimate of G.O.P. costs. And he reports he does not have the figures for past campaigns.

The $500,000-plus cost of the 1949 senatorial campaign was determined from financial statements filed with the Department of State here by the major parties and "independent" committees that supported Lehman or Dulles.

The figure does not include campaign spending within counties, but only that of state-wide organizations.

A complete breakdown of more than 100 financial statements would have to be made before you could arrive at the exact overall total reported for the 1949 Senate race.

Here are a few of the organizations and the amounts they said they received and spent:

Democratic State Committee—received $285,623 in contributions; spent $248,100.

Republican State Committee—received $150,706; spent $179,536.

State Independent Citizens Committee for Lehman—received $152,329; spent $151,105.

Independent Citizens Committee—received $152,329; spent $151,105.

Marshall Is Almost In as Rule Fades

Precedent Shattered on Keeping Military Men Out of Cabinet; GOP Opposition Overcome
Truman's Choice

Indiana Democrat Calls Marshall 'Front Man for Traitors'

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—The way was almost clear today for Gen. George C. Marshall to take over as secretary of defense.

Riding down Republican opposition, Congress voted yesterday to shatter a long-time precedent and let a military man—instead of a civilian—enter the cabinet as boss of a military department.

Only President Truman's certain approval of this action and equally certain Senate confirmation of Marshall's nomination remain before Marshall can step in.

The House voted, 220 to 105, approval of a bill, requested by Mr. Truman, to amend the Armed Services Unification Act to permit Marshall—and only he—to become Secretary of Defense. This 1947 law had specified that only a civilian could hold the post. One hundred Republicans and five Democrats voted against the bill.

Before it acted, the House added an amendment expressing the sentiment of Congress that Marshall's appointment must not be followed by the nomination of another military man when he retires.

Accepting this added safeguard without debate, the Senate, a couple of hours later, voted 47 to 21 to send the bill on to President Truman.

One Democrat, McCarran of Nevada, joined 20 Republicans in voting against passage. Thirty-seven Democrats and 10 Republicans supported it.

Succeeds Johnson
The President's signature on the bill will open the way for Marshall's formal nomination to succeed Louis A. Johnson who resigned early this week. Johnson had been sharply criticized by a number of congressmen and others for what they called America's lack of military preparedness for war in Korea.

Overwhelming Senate approval of Marshall's nomination is expected. Since even many of those who voted against changing the law praised Marshall highly.

For the 69-year-old retired general, the defense post will become the second he has held in President Truman's cabinet since his retirement as army chief of staff after World War 2. The first was secretary of state. Before that he had been sent to China as a special envoy.

Hit by Democrat
Marshall's service in the latter post brought a bitter attack on him yesterday by Senator Jenner (D-Ind.).

Jenner linked Marshall to the Yalta, Tehran and Potsdam decisions which he said had given Russia half the world without a fight. He also criticized Marshall's mediation proposal four years ago that Chinese Communists be brought into the Chinese government.

"George Marshall is not only willing, he is eager to play the role of a front man for traitors," Jenner shouted. "The truth is this: no new role for him, for (Continued on Page 16, Col. 6)

Congress Groups Tentatively Agree On Control of Reds

Provision Calls for Making All Communists and Agents Register in Future

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Senate-House conferees have tentatively agreed on the final terms of a bill aimed at hobbling Communist activities in this country.

Among other things, the measure calls for internment—without the right of habeas corpus—of dangerous Reds in time of invasion, insurrection in the cause of a foreign power, or rebellion. The conferees reportedly turned down a Senate proposal for internment power at any time the country is at war.

Broadly, however, the compromise bill follows terms of a Senate-approved Communist control bill adopted earlier in the week. The House had passed a sharply different anti-Communist measure earlier.

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), conference chairman forbade official announcement of the terms. He said he won't consider a real agreement has been reached until the last "T" is crossed, and the last conferee has signed the recommendations, probably Monday.

The measure then would go to the House, which has agreed to (Continued on Page 16, Col. 6)

Laborers' Strike Won't Stop Opening of Paltz College

Ulster County Has 8 Polio Cases in Present Outbreak

The reporting of one case of polio this past week brings the total up to eight in the county since the present outbreak. Three of the cases were reported during the month of August. Ulster county has been especially fortunate up to this point as relates to the incidence of polio. Of the reported cases but one has had sufficient muscular involvement to require hospitalization in an institution for rehabilitation following acute phase of the disease.

During the month of August communicable diseases were not prevalent in the area. There was one case of typhoid fever reported, the first since October 1949. In the monthly summary of activities in the Ulster County Health Department Dr. Robert H. Broad, commissioner of health, notes that on October 1, 1950, there will be five vacancies in positions of public health nurse for field service, and has existed since February, no one is in the position of supervising public health nurse. As a result of this shortage of nurses some of the services will have to be curtailed.

Miss Blanche Armstrong, public health educator who has been assigned to Ulster county by the New York State Department of Health since September 1949, has (Continued on Page 16, Col. 6)

Dormitory Won't Open But Students Will Live in Village, Haggerty Says

Opening of the New Paltz State Teachers College on September 23 will not be delayed by the strike of laborers on the dormitory, Dr. W. J. Haggerty stated today. A continuation of the strike will be "another added delay" in opening the dormitory but will not prevent the students from reporting to school.

Dr. Haggerty stated this morning that he expected the strike would be over and the men back to work by Tuesday or Wednesday. However, if the work is further delayed he stated the incoming students would report on September 29 and temporary quarters would be assigned in the village until the dormitory is completed.

Should it become necessary to provide temporary quarters for some 250 students, Dr. Haggerty said they would be notified by letter early next week of the change. Some time ago when it was evident the new dormitory would not be completed in time for the usual opening of the college, the opening was delayed two weeks until September 23 when the new students will report.

Friday afternoon it was announced that the laborers on the Benedictine Hospital job in this city would join the work stoppage.

Airfield Is Not Harmed In Action

Leathernecks and Tanks
Swarm Position, Get Weak Opposition From Defenders
Was Big Gamble

MacArthur Has Troop Smashing 120-Mile Line in Southeast

Tokyo, Sept. 16 (AP)—Tank-k American Marines today captured Kimpo Airfield, 12 miles north of the new Inchon beachhead at 15 miles northwest of Seoul—11 Red-held former Korean Republic capital.

This swift drive inland from the beachhead established Friday was made as a big allied offensive kicked off all along the 120-mile perimeter on the old beachhead in southeast Korea.

It was General MacArthur's grand-scale gamble to end the war soon. A U. S. Air Force spokesman said the Marines seized the Kimpo Airfield against relatively light resistance. He said the field was secure and soon may be in operation.

The Leathernecks swiftly secured their beachhead after 24 allied ships arrived off the Yellow Sea port with some 40,000 troops. At daybreak Saturday they began funneling out toward the Red-held capital of Seoul, 22 miles eastward. They plunged ahead a total six miles.

Troops and equipment poured ashore. Inchon's port installations were put into operation quickly, despite the thunderous naval and air bombardment preceding the landings.

Move to Cut Forces
On the old allied beachhead, 16 mountainous miles to the south east, the Eighth Army's big push had gained from one to three miles on a 70-mile front from the Taeguk sector to the South Korean coast.

These were the jaws of a giant nut-cracker aimed at trapping the Korean Red Army between United Nations forces in the north and south a move that MacArthur gambled would "disintegrate" the Communists.

MacArthur gambled also that Russia or Red China would not intervene.

It wasn't a hasty strategy. These coordinated blows against the Red invaders. The bold plan for the west coast landings was conceived by MacArthur July 12 less than three weeks after the tanked North Koreans crossed parallel 38 dividing the Asiatic peninsula.

It was planned when green American occupation troops from Japan were retreating bitterly before the Red juggernaut on the Kumi river.

Although drawn in minute detail and "over long line of communication and our lack of both personnel and equipment. It has taken a long time to build up enough strength to cope with the invader."

Asked his opinion of the Red soldier, Walker said that during the first month of the war "when the North Koreans were made up of trained, battle-hardened troops, they equalled in the individual and in the smaller unit, any troops I have ever fought against in any war."

But he said that many of their best soldiers have been killed and the "steel corps" of the North Korean Army has been greatly reduced.

"Unless they are augmented by other battle-hardened units," Walker said, "I feel that they are not going to be such good soldiers from now on."

Weed Out Gamblers' Cops Is Sentiment of N. Y. Judge

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—New York city's police commissioner sat stunned in a Brooklyn court last night as a bookie's voice—rasping from a wire-tapped recording—told of police payoffs and fake arrests to shield an alleged $20,000,000 gambling ring.

Police Commissioner William F. O'Brien reddened with anger as he listened to the recording played by Assistant District Attorney Julius Helfand.

Other principals in the bizarre scene in Kings county court were Presiding Judge Samuel Leibowitz; the Brooklyn grand jury which has been probing gambling and other racketeers for the past eight months; and August W. Flath, top uniformed man in the entire New York city police department.

"We have others (records) beside this," Helfand said, "naming names in the police department."

The wire tap recording was made on telephones in a Nassau county Long Island headquarters of the alleged bookmaking ring.

Earlier yesterday, a Brooklyn gambling squad raided the headquarters, took gambling bet calls and telephone numbers, and subsequently arrested 19 men. All were held as material witnesses.

The alleged brains of the ring, Harry Gross, 32, was seized by police while asleep in his Brooklyn hotel suite. Helfand asked that Gross and his brother Jack, 23, be held in "protective custody" and without bail until Monday morning.

After the court recording session, Judge Leibowitz told O'Brien that New York city has "the finest police department in the world."

The judge said he thought only "a comparative handful" of the police are crooked but that "we want to weed out the garden."

Miss Harriet Allen Becomes Bride of Staatsburg Man

Miss Harriet Allen, daughter of Charles L. Allen of Lomontville, became the bride Sunday, Sept. 10, of Alan R. Borner, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilfred Borner of Staatsburg in a double ring ceremony at the home of the bride, with the Rev. John J. Randolph of Poughkeepsie, grandfather of the groom, officiating.

The house was decorated with white gladioli and candles, and Mrs. Robert Shumate was the pianist, playing "O Promise Me," "The Lord's Prayer," and traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ankle-length ice blue satin, with a shoulder-length ice blue veil of French illusion. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of white roses.

Miss Jane E. Gruber of Oneonta was maid of honor, wearing an ankle-length gown of gold silk tulle with a headpiece of gold tulle trimmed with flowers. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of white roses.

Richard Horan of Staatsburg was best man.

After a reception at the Lomontville Community Hall for about 100 guests, the couple left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C. and Kentucky. For traveling, the bride wore a navy suit with light-colored accessories, and a corsage of tallman roses. The couple will live in Staatsburg.

The bride attended Kingston High School and the school of nursing at Vassar Brothers Hospital. She studied operating room technique at Johns Hopkins Hospital, and was employed at the Boudier Hospital in Kingston. The groom attended Staatsburg High School. He is associated in business with his father.

Teachers to Hold Science Week-End

A group of elementary teachers, sponsored by the Kingston Association for Childhood Education, has planned to week-end in the country soon re-acquainting themselves with various aspects of nature and planning their science program for the year.

The week-end will start Friday afternoon, September 22, and will continue until Sunday afternoon, September 24. All are welcome to attend as many meetings as possible.

The program will open Friday at 2:45 p. m. in the Myron J. Michael School auditorium with an address by Dr. Gerald S. Craig, well-known professor of natural sciences at Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Craig also is the author of "New Pathways in Science."

The elementary schools and the M.J.M. School will close at 2:30 p. m. so that all teachers may attend. Parents also are invited.

Following Dr. Craig's talk the group will take up headquarters at Deyo's Guesthouse in Pataunkunk for the rest of the meeting. The program is as follows:

Friday, 6:30 p. m., dinner followed by a talk on "Birds of Ulster County" by Daniel Smiley of Lake Mohonk, well-known local authority on birds.

Saturday morning, bird walk conducted by Raymond Van Valkenburgh, principal of School 4; demonstration of a science kit suitable for elementary grades by Harold Bunting, science teacher, M.J.M.; and a field trip conducted by Dr. William I. Jahoda of New Paltz State Teachers College. Participants will collect plant specimens, insect life and fossils for classification and mounting later in the afternoon during the trip.

Saturday afternoon, informal talk on jet propulsion by William Reardon, principal of School 1; a demonstration by Dr. Jahoda on methods of preserving and cataloging science materials; and a picnic picnic will be held around an outdoor fireplace in the evening. Dr. Ordway of New Paltz State Teachers College will direct a "star-gazing" period.

Dinner will be served Sunday at 1 p. m. followed by a talk on "Atmosphere" by Dr. Donald S. Allen of New Paltz State Teachers College.

A variety of science exhibits and materials will be on display. Printed materials, simple experiments suitable for the elementary science program, film strips and exhibit material will be available for the use of teachers.

Competent consultants from the school system will be on hand to assist teachers who wish to experiment. Consultants will include Mrs. Florence Christians, M.J.M.; Harold Bunting, M.J.M.; and Warren Russell.

Anyone desiring transportation to the meetings or further information about the science week-end should contact Miss Ann Whitbeck, telephone 1862-J.

Contour-shaped self belt (lower center) has reproductions of old gold coins, emphasizes new longer waistline look. Gauntlet sleeve (upper right) is in reversible fabric in brown and aquamarine. Bow-tailed collar in white (ottoman) (lower right) dotted with rhinestones is used for short black velvet dinner dress. These are ideas to watch for in assembling a fall wardrobe.

By GAILE DUGAS,

NEA Staff Writer

New York—(NEA)—In any analysis of fall fashions, certain treatments—a sleeve, a neckline, a skirt—assume importance. They are style points that any woman assembling a fall wardrobe must keep in mind.

The new back sweep overskirt, as seen in an iridescent charcoal gray taffeta afternoon dress, is important. This same overskirt appears in short dinner dresses and in short evening gowns. This particular New York design has high capped sleeves which form a part of the neckline interest, an eight-button front closing, and narrow self-belt.

Another interesting segment of the fall silhouette is the gauntlet sleeve. In one design, the lower half of the elbow-cuffed sleeve is done in reversible fabric, a brown background with aquamarine motifs. The dress itself is slim, with back kick pleat in the skirt.

The longer waistline look for autumn is accented, in a daytime dress, by a contour-shaped self belt, which has reproductions of old gold coins. Sheer violet wool is used for dress and belt.

The portrait neckline, important for fall, is given a bow-tailed collar of white ottoman dotted with rhinestones in another design. This flattering neckline treatment is used on a short black velvet dinner dress.

A flounced skirt this fall may have the new low-down pockets. They appear in one pumpkin-colored velvet dress which has buttons in self-color.

Inviting a Boy Out
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for a young girl to telephone a boy and ask him to go out with her, provided, of course, she assumes the responsibilities of paying their way? This boy has taken her out a few times if this would make a difference.

Answer: Not unless she is inviting several others—in other words making it a party.

White Runner at Wedding
Dear Mrs. Post: Didn't you say it was not proper to use a white runner up through the church on the occasion of a wedding? I've been told such a runner is the thing to have but don't believe it coincides with your opinion.

Answer: No, I never said it was "improper." I said it was unknown in more communities than not.

Gifts to Godparents?
Dear Mrs. Post: Should the Answer: No, never. It is the godparents who give the baby the present.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

ACHESON'S VICTORY
Dean Acheson, secretary of state, has won an outstanding political victory against his arch-enemy in the administration, Louis Johnson. Their quarrel has been continuous since Louis Johnson became secretary of defense. It has been intense, positive, with no holds barred.

Many factors entered into the antagonism:
1. The Department of Defense and the State Department overlap in the sense that the latter forms the policy which the former must implement. For instance, it was the State Department which forgot to arrange for an entrance to or an exit from the American zone in Berlin, except through Russian territory.
But the Department of Defense had speedily and at a great cost to conduct the Berlin airlift. It was the State Department which bungled our relations with Asiatic countries.

But it is the Department of Defense that has to fight the war in Korea.
Unless the State Department, the Department of Defense, the joint chiefs of staff, and the President are as one in policy, there must be quarrels over responsibility. These have occurred constantly, particularly as the Department of Defense is expected by the public to keep expenses down when there is no fighting and yet always to be ready, no matter how difficult the State Department may make the situation.

2. Information reaches both departments from many sources, including their own. Army and navy intelligence may provide different data from State Department data and from central intelligence agency data.
The collection of information is not too difficult; the appraisal of such information, however, involves experience, knowledge, background and judgment. Military men, fresh from war experience, are likely to differ in judgment from Washington desk-sitters.

Furthermore, it cannot be denied that our military men have never been famous for their respect for those in the State Department, whom they call cookie-pushers.

Louis Johnson took a pro-Chiang Kai-shek position regarding China—a position which has proved itself to be correct by the Korean war, and one which General Douglas MacArthur, in the field, fully supported.

Dean Acheson took a pro-Chinese Communist position, obviously on two grounds:

A. That it would be too costly to support an anti-Communist position in Asia and at the same time protect western Europe, which he regarded as more essential.

B. Roosevelt had organized the appeasement policy at Tehran; it has never been reversed by order of the President, and therefore it is the duty of the State Department to continue to carry it out until instructed otherwise.

No matter how antagonistic one may be toward Dean Acheson and his peculiarities, this must be regarded as his position. Louis Johnson opposed that position, believing, and he has proved to be correct, that the Communist breakthrough would come in Asia before it would come in Europe.

Knowing that that was his attitude, last April, at a private dinner attended by a large number of editors and publishers, I asked him if, in the event of a Communist seizure of Formosa, the United States would be prepared to meet the consequences. My question, a little more intricately stated, was designed to give Johnson an opportunity to tell them in this large gathering what I know he was saying privately, namely, that the State Department policy was making the situation impossible. He edged the question altogether.

8. Temperamentally, Acheson and Johnson were incompatible. Acheson has the polish of an English gentleman, suave, smooth, slick and oblique. He can say in 500 or 600 words what most of us could conclude by a "yes," a "no," or a "maybe." To straight-shooters, his circumlocutions can be tantalizing. He covers his errors with brilliant briefs which come down to the letter of the law or of his instructions. Someone else always originated the error.

Johnson is free of tongue. His temper is not of the smoothest and even the long experience of his under-secretary, Steve Early, could not save him from hitting out sharply when smoothies would have counted not 10 but 1,000. He made enemies by telling the truth as he saw it. Unable to compromise with public opinion, which is often wrong on critical problems, an unwillingness to lie to gain popularity, he became a liability to Harry Truman, whose outlook on great affairs is narrowly political and partisan.

So, Louis Johnson was ditched. To suggest that he wanted to quit is to go beyond the facts. He was fired!

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

MEDICAL TREATMENT OF SEVERE GOITER

I have written before of a physician friend who walked from his home to my office, a distance of four blocks, sat down for a couple of minutes, then asked me to take his pulse rate. The pulse rate was 72 which is normal. He then informed me that he had undergone surgical removal of the serious type of goiter, exophthalmic goiter, just three weeks before. His pulse rate before operation was 110 and his basal metabolism rate 25 above normal.

It is because of this rapid recovery after surgical removal of the thyroid gland that operation is the favorite treatment for serious goiter (rapid heart beat, trembling, bulging eyes).

However, there are cases in which surgical operation is not advisable and so other methods of treating exophthalmic goiter must be considered. For this reason some cases are treated by X-ray or radium and others by medical treatment.

In Annals of Clinical Medicine, Buenos Aires, Dr. E. S. Mazzetti states that propylthiouracil is the most reliable drug in the treatment of serious goiter. The necessary or therapeutic dose is smaller than that of thiouracil and is well tolerated. The beginning dosage is 150 mg. divided into three or four fractional or divided doses given at regular intervals. The daily dose can be reduced to 25 or 50 mg. at a later date and is maintained for six months or longer provided no reactions occur. To make sure that too much propylthiouracil is not given, the basal metabolism test is made to prevent the opposite effect of goiter, slowness of heart beat and excess fat—occurring.

This drug, propylthiouracil, is recommended in (1) cases of moderate goiter of moderate size and without pressure on the windpipe (trachea), (2) when surgical operation might be dangerous, (3) in teen-age boys and girls, in the elderly, and in patients with heart disease, and (4) when a patient refuses operation.

Surgical removal of the thyroid gland is recommended when there is intolerance to drugs, very large goiter, poisonous (toxic) goiter, and goiter compressing the windpipe.

Generally speaking, then, unless the physician believes that immediate operation should be performed, the patient with exophthalmic goiter may be treated safely with propylthiouracil for several months.

X-ray treatment of goiter is also a safe method of treatment in skilled hands but requires treatment over several months and sometimes up to a year.

Goiter: Simple or Severe

Goiter may be of the simple type which is not dangerous or it may be severe. Write today for Dr. Barton's informative booklet on this subject entitled "Goiter: Simple or Severe." To obtain it, send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, Inc., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Operation Partiality

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — There were a good many reasons why Louey Johnson was fired as secretary of national defense. He was, of course, the victim of fate in the Korean war, and the President needed a political scapegoat.

But the most important reason, in the end, for Johnson's exit was that he never made a friend of his chief in the White House. Had he won Truman as a real friend, the President would have stuck by him through hell and high water—regardless of Korea, regardless of military blunders, and regardless of economy at the wrong time.

Truman has stuck by his friend Mon Wallgren, by his friend Dean Acheson, and by his late friend Tom Pendergast, despite all sorts of criticism. But Johnson was never a friend.

In fact, Truman never even trusted his secretary of defense. He knew that Johnson was playing ball with the Republicans, with his old enemy Bernard Baruch, and with others who played on the opposite political ball team. At one time the President complained to Senator Kilgore, who comes from Johnson's home state, West Virginia:

"In order to find out what Louey is up to, I have to read the Republican press and the Chicago Tribune."

Actually, the President's decision to fire Johnson was made four or five weeks ago. After making the decision, Truman told very few people, one of them being General Marshall. Incidentally, it was not until the past week that Marshall finally gave his assent.

Secretary Johnson didn't know he was on the skids till the White House called in Steve Early, the undersecretary of defense, to tell him they wanted his resignation a week earlier than Johnson's, so that Early would not be mixed up in Johnson's exit. But Johnson heard about it through Early's office, went down to the White House and handed in his resignation, thus healing the President to the gun.

Strengthening Acheson
Mr. Truman had planned to force the resignation at approximately this time, however, in order to have it coincide with the meeting of the Big Three foreign ministers in New York. This was deliberate strategy planned to strengthen Dean Acheson's hand. Johnson's eyes were on the Pacific and the Far East, while Acheson considered Europe more important. And the Johnson resignation was a deliberate move planned to strengthen our European front.

In fact, at least two members of the North Atlantic Pact—Great Britain and France—had been unhappy over Johnson's leadership of European preparedness, and the British had made no bones about indicating their restlessness under the ebullient and brawny Louey.

British resentment against Johnson undoubtedly dates back to the Hague meeting of national defense ministers, where Johnson deliberately planted a story aimed against British War Secretary John Strachey. Newspaper accounts from The Hague carried the story that British and American defense ministers had arranged to have confidential reference sent direct to British Defense Minister Emmanuel Shinwell, thereby circumventing War Secretary Strachey because of his former left-wing connection.

The story was later denied. But it developed that the original story had been planted by Johnson personally with The Associated Press. In fact, the AP man sent a confidential memo to his office telling how Johnson personally had given him the story slapping down the British war secretary.

Naturally, this got back to the British war secretary, and the British have dropped hints from time to time since then that they would work more efficiently with someone other than Louey in our national defense post.

Other reasons why the President decided to fire his bouncing secretary of defense were:

1. Johnson's knife-in-the-back policy toward Acheson—At official conferences, Johnson pretended to be a great pal of Secretary Acheson. But the White House knew that he had been passing ammunition to G.O.P. Senators Brewster and Wherry to aid their attacks.

At conferences in the Pentagon, Johnson and his aides could not talk for ten minutes without dropping wisecracks against the State Department. It became an open scandal in New York.

2. Procrastination in the Pentagon—Ever since the Korean outbreak, President Truman has been begging Johnson for a strategic long-range defense plan. But the truth is, Johnson hasn't been able to get the joint chiefs of staff to agree on even the requirements for the Korean war. They are still bickering over our defense planning, and the few points they agree on are usually rejected and sent back for revision by Johnson. Yet Johnson has concealed this confusion in the Pentagon with optimistic, misleading reports to the public.

General Bradley has been so fed up that he has been ready to resign, though as a good soldier he has tried hardest to follow Johnson's leadership.

3. Johnson's truthfulness?—Inside the cabinet, Johnson had the reputation of being an incurable liar. Ex-Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall used the shrewdest language to express his falling of Johnson's "Johnson," he told friends, "Inters the truth."

On one occasion specifically known to this writer, Steve Early lectured his boss like a schoolboy. "You have got to learn that you can't lie," Early told Johnson. "You simply cannot lie. Especially you can't lie to newspapers. You get found out."

4. Johnson's grandiose promises—Johnson guessed wrong at practically every turn. He saw silver linings where there were none. He told the public what he thought they wanted to hear. He preached economy before the Korean war when he thought the public wanted economy. His statement that the United States would be ready at 5 a. m. if Russia attacked at 4 a. m. was one he can never live down.

5. Johnson and MacArthur—The White House became convinced that Johnson had something to do with General MacArthur's statement on Formosa. In the first place, Johnson was close to Gen. Julius Klein, a Chicago newspaperman who now heads Pan American Airways' public relations lobby and who has also been active in the "get Acheson" drive. Klein has been a close friend of Senator Brewster, Wherry and Taft in the drive to boost MacArthur and fire Acheson. The White House received information that Johnson had been playing hand-in-glove with Brewster and Klein in regard to Formosa and other matters.

6. Johnson's legal commitments—Before he entered the cabinet, Johnson was personal attorney for H. H. Kung, brother-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The Kung family has heavy investments in the Philippines and Formosa, and Johnson was continually poking his finger in the State Department's pie in regard to these matters. He obtained the appointment of his old friend, Myron Cowan, to be ambassador to the Philippines, and never renounced his drive to have the U. S. intervene in Formosa—where the Kung-Soong families are now in exile.

7. Bernard Baruch—Believe it or not, it was Bernard Baruch who helped to tip the scales against Johnson, though inadvertently. The President, who has developed a bitter hatred for Baruch, learned that Johnson had been conferring with him. This was the last straw. The President's mind was made up after that.

"Please settle an argument," requests a Hartford correspondent. "North claims he had a perfectly sound free raise to two diamonds. South claimed that the hand was not strong enough and that North should have passed. South claims that it was this miserably weak free raise that got him to the unmakeable contract of three no-trump. He says he would have stopped below game except for the fact that North gave him too much encouragement."

"In the play, West opened a low heart, East played the jack, and South won with the queen. South led down the ace of diamonds and then led another diamond, discovering the bad news. East was bound to get in with the queen of diamonds, at which time a heart return defeated the contract."

"Was the contract quite reasonable, even though defeated? Also, was North justified in raising to two diamonds?"

North's free raise was very skimpy. Most experts would pass over one heart. However, some fine players do not take the free raise quite so seriously, and players of that school would probably consider the North hand worth a raise to two diamonds. The point is a very close one, and depends more on "style" than on anything else.

As for the contract, it was not only very reasonable, but actually should have been made. South threw the contract away when he took the first diamond trick with the ace.

A careful study of the hand shows that South needs only four diamond tricks to make his contract. He can be sure of winning four clubs and the opening heart trick. In going after four diamond tricks, South's only consideration is to keep East out of the lead. As the actual declarer found out, it was fatal to give East the chance to lead hearts.

Since South needs four diamond tricks and needs to keep East out of the lead, the correct play of the suit is well marked. After winning the first trick with the queen of hearts, declarer should lead a diamond to dummy's king. He should then return a low diamond from dummy and finesse the nine from his own hand.

As it happens, this finesse would succeed, and declarer would make his contract with an overtrick. Even if it lost to a doubleton queen, however, South would still make four diamond tricks and would therefore fulfill his contract.

It is true that South would fail if East happened to hold three diamonds headed by the Q-10. However, in that case no play would work.

Finish Prevents Decay
 Cabinet woods are carefully finished to give them added beauty and color permanence in addition to protection against decay. The effective coating, especially designed for the purpose, also prevents absorption of moisture and the resultant shrinking, swelling, warping or creaking.

Wait for Cool Weather To Insulate in Comfort

A good thing for home owners who double as carpenters to remember is: For greatest comfort install insulation of the rock wool type on a cool day. The fine pieces of this material scatter easily and generally settle on the skin. An uncomfortable itching sensation is set up and aggravated by the natural perspiration of the body.

This work should be done in cool weather and gloves should be worn over the hands. A long-sleeved shirt, buttoned at the neck, is also a necessary covering.

Window Shutters Give Home Touch of Color

Although window shutters originally served to give protection against the weather, their chief function now is to add color and architectural beauty to your home. The roof color is the key color in exterior design and the shutters should be painted to blend or contrast with the roof. If the roof is covered with green shingles, a watching green or a harmonizing orange-red would be a pleasing color for the shutters.

When the shingles are in blend or mixtures of two or more colors, shutters which match one of the more prominent colors in the roof would be attractive.

Cedar Closet Doors

Closets lined with red cedar wood, as they are ordinarily installed, are of doubtful value in protecting clothing from moth attack. Usually the closets are not tightly enough constructed to contain the emanations from the cedar wood in sufficient strength to kill the worms. The mere odor of cedar does not keep moths from crawling or flying into a closet or from damaging the clothing or furs. In justice to red cedar wood, it should be stated that closets very tightly constructed with the red heart wood and equipped with doors that close tightly against felt gaskets can be depended upon to protect against moth attack.

Draperies in the Room

Table tops of bright colored croton or chintz to match the draperies in a room or table tops of wallpaper to match the walls are amusing decorative details. Plate glass is of course the ideal thing to cover such tops with to protect them from wear but if you can't afford that, just give them several coats of clear shellac.

A Place for Everything

It is simple to keep a neat closet if a place is planned for each thing. Pretty fabric-covered hat boxes and storage boxes with matching laundry bags make decorative and handy closet accessories. You also can find matching fabric to line the walls and shelves.

Paint Panels of Doors

When painting a door, coat the panels first, then the center rail, the top and bottom rail, the vertical stiles and, finally, the edges. This procedure will avoid streaks and runs. Be sure to paint the top and bottom edges of all doors to keep out moisture and prevent rotting and warping.

Dusty Cement Floor

If your cement floor "dusts," wet it down with a solution of three pounds of zinc sulphate to a gallon of water. Pour on and work well into the concrete, let dry and then brush clean. This treatment will bind together loose particles and make the surface hard again.

What Price Lot?

Cost of land should represent not much more nor less than 30 per cent of the total amount it is planned to spend on building a home, according to building industry economists. Thus, if a total expenditure of $15,000 is planned, the plot should not cost more than $3,000; the house $12,000.

Built-in Can Opener

It was bound to come sooner or later—and it has. Latest gadget that can be built into a kitchen wall is a can opener. A chromium-plated panel opens, lowering a crank-operated can opener into position where a quick whirl cuts off the lid of the can and holds the lid, preventing it from sinking into the food.

For a Dustless Drive

Dust can be kept down on dirt driveways by sprinkling them with calcium chloride and grass can be prevented from growing up between flagstones by pouring a strong solution of salt and water over it.

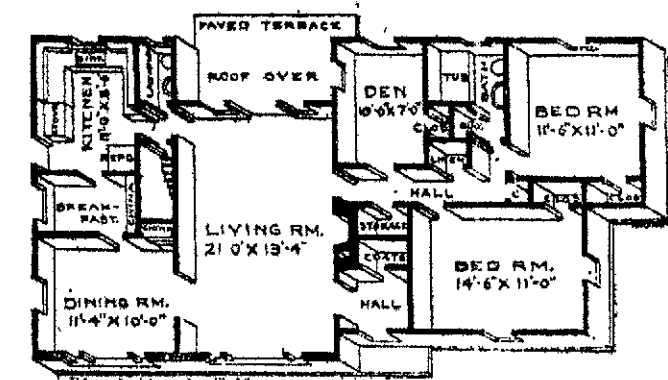

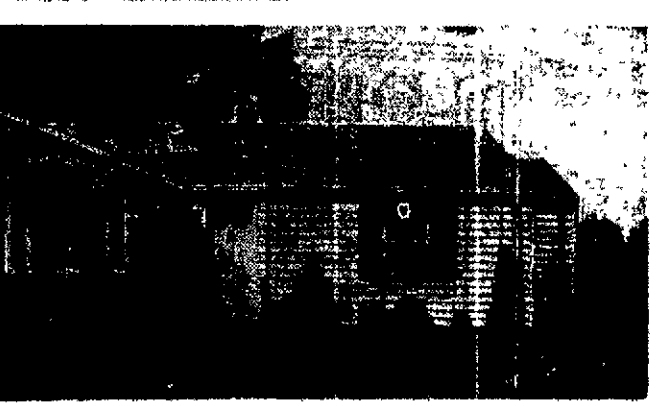

What Porch Costs

An open porch costs about half as much to build as a room of the same size. A screened porch costs approximately two-thirds as much and if the porch is glassed in it will cost about the same as a room.

New Insulating Plaster

A new insulating plaster has been developed which, it is said, can be nailed into without chipping the surface and spreading cracks. The plaster is said to be mixed in the same manner as ordinary brittle-hard plaster, except that a light weight mineral (vermiculite) is used instead of sand.

THE ELKHART

The Budget-Minded Will Like This House

Rooms six
Bedrooms two
Closets eight
Cubage 10,200 ft. (half cellar)
 24,800 ft. (full cellar)

Dimensions 52' x 36'

Budget-minded builders will cheer for "The Elkhart" because it can be built with a half cellar excavation, if desired. With a half cellar excavation, the cubage of the house is 10,200; with a full excavation the cubage is 24,800 feet.

The front door opens into a good-sized entry hall that contains a large coat closet at the further end. At the left, an open arch leads to the large living room, which is a meeting spot for the passageways leading to the rest of the rooms in this long house.

Living Room Has Fireplace
 Measuring 21 feet by 13 feet 4 inches, the living room boasts a large fireplace on its right inside wall. The beautiful picture window in the front outside wall adds to the beauty of the room and it the house is properly located, will provide you with a splendid view of the surrounding countryside.

In spite of the fact that the living room does serve as a meeting ground for the hallways from the various rooms, it still has a long section of unbroken wall space—a feature most important for attractive furniture arrangement.

Just beyond the fireplace, on the right, is a central hallway that connects with all the rooms. To the right of the hallway and back to the fireplace, is a large storage area, that would make a perfect place to keep an assortment of items not frequently used.

Just opposite this storage area is the den, which could be used as a bedroom. If a third sleeping room is required, measuring 10 feet 6 inches by 7 feet, the den is very attractively situated for one window, in the side wall, looks out on the paved terrace, while the other window, in the back wall, faces the back yard. The big clothes closet will come in handy if you decide to use this room as a bedroom.

Large Storage Area
 Facing the hallway is the good-sized linen closet. There is another closet, located inside the bathroom door, just a few steps further down the hall. These three closets, actually take up a square area of wall space for two are located back to back while the third closet is placed with its back to the side of the other two closets. Thus, within a small amount of space you have a large amount of storage space.

The bathroom itself is completely modern and contains both a tub and a shower. It has one small window that faces out on the back yard.

At the end of this central hallway is the back bedroom, which is 11 feet 6 inches by 11 feet in dimensions. Two windows, one in the back wall and one in the side wall, provide plenty of light and good cross ventilation. This room also has a large clothes closet, which again is one of three closets making up a central storage area.

The front bedroom is located to the right of the hall and also has windows on adjoining walls. However, this bedroom is larger than the other one and measures 14 feet 6 inches by 11 feet. The closet, located in the center of the room, opens in this room. The third closet opens in the hall.

The left wing of the house contains the kitchen, the breakfast nook and the dining room. A short hallway connects the living room and dining room. The lavatory is located off this hallway just before the kitchen.

Measuring 11 feet by 8 feet 6 inches, the kitchen is completely modern and has an array of cupboards placed above and below the working counter arranged in U-shape. The sink is located directly underneath the window in the center of the back wall; the stove is placed at the far left end of the working counter. This arrangement puts the stove near the refrigerator and makes the job of preparing meals that much easier.

There is a side door leading out into the back yard at the

Storage Walls Gain Favor With Builders

Serving the double purpose of separating rooms and increasing the amount of usable space in a house, "storage walls" are gaining favor with architects and home builders. When closed, these devices look like wall cabinets. When open, they provide closet and cupboard space, book shelves, desks, wardrobes and other built-in pieces, all scientifically designed.

Originally custom-made and therefore comparatively expensive, storage walls are now available as prefabricated units, and eventually will be stocked by many lumber dealers. The dimensions of the cabinets are such that they can be combined to form walls varying in height, length and depth.

The wall may be a full partition containing a door; it may be a low wall only partly separating different sections of the same room; it can be backed up against an existing wall or it can be placed in an L or T shape.

Shaking Paint May Cause Air Bubbles

Shaking of paint, varnish and lacquer products, especially varnishes and enamels, is likely to result in minute air bubbles which may cause pin prick blisters on the finished job. Such products should be carefully and thoroughly stirred before use and then "baked" by pouring two or three times from one container to another. Finally, straining the finish through an old silk stocking or fine cloth will remove any specks or lumps which may have been missed in the stirring. If the user desires maximum assurance of a perfect finish.

This procedure is especially advised when the can has been previously opened and left standing, with possible development of a skin over the paint.

Silencing Squeaks

Squeaking floor boards can often be silenced by sifting talcum powder between the joints.

Upholstery for Walls

Plastic upholstery is the newest wrinkle in interior decoration. It comes in 18 colors, in foot-square panels, all ready to install. It's easy to apply on walls, doors, headboards, built-in seats, etc. The material wipes clean, doesn't chip or peel and acts as glamorous insulation.

Times Workers Get Increases Up to $10

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—Editorial and commercial employees of the New York Times have been granted weekly wage increases ranging from $3 to $10 by a Harvard University professor sitting as a labor arbitrator.

The arbitrator's awards, the newspaper said today, have been embodied in a new two-year contract between the newspaper and the C.I.O. American Newspaper Guild.

Professor John T. Dunlop, a labor economist who served as the arbitrator, began hearings last July after the newspaper and the guild agreed to arbitration of the questions of wages and contract duration.

Under Dunlop's award, the top minimum pay for editorial employees on the staff of the New York Times is increased from $110 to $120 a week, roughly nine per cent.

The arbitrator arrived at a general wage increase for other classifications by hiking top minimum rates seven per cent and applying the dollar value of this to each experience grade.

Copper Shortage

Rome, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—Approximately 375 copper workers here were idle today, and further layoffs in the industry were predicted because of a shortage of raw materials. The General Cable Corp. said about 500 of its 2,500 workers had been laid off. The Rome Division of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., announced it had laid off about 75 cast-shop workers. The plant employs about 2,000.

OUT ON BALE—Three Texas bales land a decorative touch to the landing at Edinburg, Tex., of this bale of cotton, described as "500 pounds of diapers in the rough." The Edinburg Chamber of Commerce is sending it to Her Royal Highness, Princess Ann of Edinburgh, new daughter of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Author's League Objects To Censoring Television

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Author's League of America objects to "private" censorship of the American people's radio and television fare.

It believes Americans "are too adult to want their intellectual and artistic fodder squeezed through a screen of self-constituted censors."

Through its president, Oscar Hammerstein II, noted co-author and producer of the Broadway hit "South Pacific," the league said yesterday it opposes a plan for a board to pass on "controversial" radio and TV personalities.

The plan is being discussed as a result of the dismissal of Jean Muir from the "Aldrich Family" program. A booklet, "Red Channels," had associated her with allegedly subversive groups—an association she has vigorously denied.

"We object to this pernicious method which would process public personalities in private session," Hammerstein said. "We can share in no such scheme of ideological control which would lack even the least governmental responsibility. We do not believe in a little censorship any more than in a large censorship."

When grown side by side, true squashes and pumpkins will not cross.

Fifth Youth Arrested

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—A 19-year-old youth, flown here from Miami, Fla., will be arraigned today on a homicide charge for the slaying last July 28 of a subway station change attendant during an attempted holdup. The youth, Emanuel Maldonado, is the last of an alleged five-member gang accused of killing Patrick McConnell, 56. Three of the accused—two of them 17 years old and one 19—were seized the same day. A fourth suspect, Ernest A. Aguilar, 20, was arrested on August 30, and Maldonado's identity was established after questioning him, police said.

Their First Day

Fort Devens, Mass., Sept. 16 (AP)—Five hundred young men—more than half of them from New York City—faced the supply sergeants today, their first day in the army at this re-activated reception center. They had a comparatively easy week-end before them. They are scheduled to draw their first pay tonight—$10 of their first month's pay. Sunday the recruits can rest up for nearly eight hours of tests scheduled for Monday. The clothing issue order calls for each man to receive $132.09 worth of uniforms and other equipment.

When grown side by side, true squashes and pumpkins will not cross.

He Has Dalmatian That Smokes, Drinks

Venice, Calif., Sept. 16 (AP)—Smoking does not stunt the growth of dogs.

Butch, a Dalmatian terrier, will be a year old next month and owner Bill Hill said today that he weighs a hulking 45 pounds.

That's a good weight even for Dalmatians that don't smoke. Butch has been smoking since he was four months old.

Hill, a furniture store owner, said he had to teach Butch to smoke in order to break him of another vice—chewing tobacco.

He said the pup had an annoying habit of jumping on customers and snatching away their cigarettes and cigars—and eating them, fiery ash and all.

Hill then bought an aluminum cigarette holder and taught the dog to smoke. Butch averages about six cigarettes a day and inhales.

The dog also like beer. Hill said, and added he once got hold of a bottle of wine and "made a sorry spectacle of himself."

Dr. Pugh, Church Leader, Is Killed

The Rev. Dr. William Barrow Pugh, 61, of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in America, was killed Thursday afternoon in a truck automobile collision at Thermopolis, Wyo., the Associated Press has reported.

Born in Ulta, Dr. Pugh was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, taking his Master's Degree at Princeton University. He was a winner of a Medal of Merit for his work as an army chaplain in World War 2. He later became stated clerk of the General Assembly of his church in 1938.

These broadcasts are scheduled to go on the air on the health department's "How's Your Health?" program, 1:15-1:30 p. m., each Wednesday, and the program will be heard at the same time weekly for 13 consecutive weeks. The broadcasts will be from transcripts prepared by the American Medical Association. Numerous eminent physicians, both in medical practice and public health work have been brought before the microphone to be interviewed for "platforms." All scripts are professionally prepared by experienced radio writers.

Cancel His Speech
Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen broke a speaking date with Republicans last night because of "unforeseen developments connected with an important national movement." He had been programmed for a banquet speech at a two-day strategy session of party candidates and campaign directors from 43 states. But the group received the following telegram, sent from LaGuardia Field, N. Y.: "Unforeseen developments connected with an important national movement make it impossible for me to complete my engagement. Will tell you details as soon as I am at liberty to do so."

Would Give Japs Voice
Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—American officials said today the United States wants to give Japan a voice in fixing the terms of the projected Japanese peace settlement. Formal exchanges with Japanese leaders are scheduled at Tokyo within the next few weeks, at the same time consultations are going on at Lake Success in an effort to get agreement with the representatives of the 12 World War 2 allies. Giving the Japanese a voice in the planning is in accord with the American program—disclosed yesterday—of welcoming Japan back into the world family without reparations or limitations on rearmament or trade.

Red Censors Busy
Berlin, Sept. 16 (AP)—Communist censors kept news of the United Nations counteroffensive in Korea out of the Russian-controlled German press here today. These papers had not even mentioned the day's allied landings behind Communist lines and were still headlining Communist successes on the Naktong-front.

Honor Ship Victims
Toronto, Sept. 16 (AP)—Civil officials and citizens pay tribute today to the memory of the 119 persons, mostly Americans, who perished in the Noronic cruise ship in Toronto harbor last September 17.

Second Husband Killed
Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Donald B. Atherton lost her first husband, Prof. Joe T. Winter, of Oklahoma, in the Battle of the Bulge in World War 2. Yesterday was notified that her second husband, Sgt. First Class Donald B. Atherton, had died of wounds received in Korea.

Electrical Strike Looms
Pittsburgh, Sept. 16 (AP)—Possibility of a strike in Westinghouse Electrical Corporation plants grew today as two major unions representing the bulk of 70,000 workers expressed deep dissatisfaction with an offer of an eight-cent hourly wage hike. The new C.I.O. International Union of Electrical Workers (I.U.E.) and the independent United Electrical Workers (U.E.) flatly rejected the offer.

Group Resumes Work
Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Relieved of pressure for fast action, a Senate-House Conference Committee resumes work today on a huge emergency defense bill. The conferees are resolving differences between a $17,192,000,000 measure passed by the Senate and a $16,771,000,000 measure passed by the House.

Minor Car Fire

15 SECONDS TO SPARE

U. S. Marines hit the beach at Wolmi Island, off Inchon on the west coast of Korea, just 15 seconds after a pulverizing naval barrage that leveled the island ceased. The Marines, like these shown in action, pushed on to Inchon proper. Other landings were made on the east coast, above Pohang. (NEA Photo) success of the landings was credited largely to six destroyers—the "sitting ducks" of Inchon.

Marines Take . . .

Reds' Blunder Helps
The destroyers steamed slowly up to Inchon's Wolmi Island defense outpost, deliberately trying to make the Reds blunder into firing. The Reds did. Flashes disclosed the shore gun positions. Then the heavy guns of British and American cruisers roared a crushing barrage. The Navy reported the destroyers suffered "superficial" damage. Undetected, the shore guns might have wrought havoc among the landing forces. AP Correspondent Belman Moxin said there were many anxious moments before the Red guns opened up. Other landings, farther out but flanking the Inchon harbor, had been seized earlier by South Korean marines.

The big push in the southeast began at dawn under overcast skies. Heavy rains fell in some sectors during the day, but the Eighth Army communique said the advance was general and carried up to three miles. On the northern end of the push—the U. S. First Cavalry sector—before Taegu—AP Correspondent Hal Boyle reported the drive carried "to within sight of flaming Waegwan, 12 air miles northwest of Taegu."

Kept on Fighting
Boyle said the troops pushed off light-heartedly, feeling that Red morale would be shattered by the Inchon landings. Boyle went on: "But this hope was quickly dashed. Instead of surrendering in masses, the North Koreans fought back with animal ferocity. Disappointment deepened with the darkening day. The fighting grew more bitter."

"The United Nations troops did well on the flanks. They reached the Naktong river on the left and swung up it several miles. At dusk they began to throw mortar fire into Waegwan. On the right flank, they circled some three miles through rain-wet hills east of Tabu."

Elsewhere, to the south of the cavalry division's sector, rain and muddy terrain bogged the attacks. Close aerial support slowed the U. S. Second Division gained a mile and one-half in the first two hours, occupying a hill northwest of Changyong.

On the left flank of the Second, elements of the U. S. 25th Division pushed two miles against stiff resistance. In one and two company strength the 25th drove its right flank toward confluence of the Nam and Naktong rivers. Red artillery fire was heavy. At dusk, Korean Reds were seen falling back west of the Nam.

Continue Drive
On the northern front, South Korean forces continued their steady drive. An Eighth Army spokesman said that a gap in the Reds was closing rapidly. The Eighth Army reported Friday the South Koreans had occupied Angang, nine miles southwest of Pohang in the northwest sector. But there was no mention of it Saturday.

The drive is directed at Pohang, Red-held east coast port 70 miles north of Pusan, the main supply port for the southeast beachhead. While the Inchon landings were in progress, South Korean marines landed Friday on the east coast north of Red Korean lines. Their objective was to cut off the east coast avenue of retreat, leaving the Reds no alternative except to take to inland roads.

General MacArthur was pinning his hopes on gaining quick control of the Seoul area, from which rail and highway lines radiate in all directions. "Everything the enemy shoots and all additional replacements he needs have to come through Seoul," MacArthur told AP correspondent Russel Brines. "We are going to try to seize that distribution area, so that it will be impossible for the North Koreans to get additional reinforcements more than a trickle of supplies."

Rear Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, after checking on the rapid developments on both the old and new beachheads, told a news conference. "The Reds are in a helluva bad way and it is about time they realized it. Their best bet is to surrender."

Says He Blacked Out
Mincola, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—Jacob Kiefer, 53-year-old Long Island Railroad engineer, blacked out just before his train crashed head on into another last February 17, causing 32 deaths, his defense counsel contends. The lawyer, James M. O'Connell, told a jury yesterday that the blackout was due to high blood pressure. Assistant District Attorney Henry Root Stern, Jr., said the jurors should not allow sympathy for Kiefer to outweigh the sympathy owed victims of the wreck.

State Political . . .

tee for Dulles—received $31,140; spent $30,090.

Rural Citizens for Dulles—received $10,692; spent $11,949. The Liberal party, which supported Lehman, said it received $6,788 and spent $6,638 during the campaign. David Dubinsky's International Ladies Garment Workers Union contributed $5,000 of this amount.

The Amalgamated Political Action fund reported that it received $10,310 and spent $39,172 to support Senator Lehman. Contributions to the various senatorial campaign funds ranged from $1 to $5,000.

Items on the expense accounts ranged from stamps to sizable fees for speech writers. State law sets a limit on the amount a candidate may spend during a campaign, but does not limit political parties.

A maximum a gubernatorial candidate may spend under the law is $10,000 plus $2 for every 100 votes he receives above 5,000. This affords a candidate considerable leeway in a state where he might receive more than 2,000,000 votes.

The state law also prohibits corporations from making contributions. But this does not stop a chairman of the board of directors of a large firm from making a personal contribution. The major parties rely heavily on contributions from party members who hold political jobs, or who hope to be put on the public payroll.

Labor unions, too make contributions. Quite often these are handled by independent committees formed to support specified candidates.

Congress Groups

vote on nothing before Wednesday.

Informed senators said this is what the measure's internment provisions will do. The attorney general, on complaint showing "reasonable cause" for suspicion, could have dangerous Reds or other subversive characters thrown into jail to be held indefinitely without trial.

The President, under the same conditions—invasion, insurrection or rebellion—could suspend the right of habeas corpus. That is the legal device for forcing a court hearing on whether a jailed or imprisoned person is unlawfully held.

The internees would have recourse of appeal to examiners, and next to a review of detention board, the findings of which could be reversed by either the attorney general or the courts in due time.

The internees could not be confined at third level. Other provisions reportedly agreed on would (a) require the registration of Communist or Communist front groups, (b) bar such persons from employment on national defense projects, and (c) stiffen penalties for conspiracy to overthrow the government.

The measure rejects proposals that mere membership in an organization declared subversive would be evidence of conspiracy against the government.

Marshall Is . . .
Gen. George C. Marshall is a living legend. On the one hand, he has been built up to the point where President Truman has called him the greatest living American and, on the other hand, everything he has been a party to in the last 10 years has helped betray his solemn trust and set the stage for the staggering Soviet victory that is sweeping across the earth."

Lucas Denounces Attack
Senate Democrats sat in white-lipped silence while Jenner spoke. It was more than two hours later before Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, gained the floor to denounce the attack.

Republican leaders were in the vanguard of the attack on the law change, with Senator Taft of Ohio, head of the G.O.P. Policy Committee, and House minority leader Martin of Massachusetts joining in the votes against the legislation.

Ulster County Has assumed her new duties with the Extension Service, Cornell University, and her services to Ulster county have been lost.

During the summer season reports have been inspected and water supplies, sewage disposal facilities and swimming pool operations have been improved. There have been relatively few minor outbreaks of infectious disease during the summer. Generally speaking the number of individuals patronizing the summer resorts have been less than in the past few years.

During August four cases of mumps were reported; five whooping cough; one influenza meningitis; one typhoid fever; three polio cases; eleven measles, all in the county. There was only one meningococcal meningitis case reported in the city and one case of chickenpox each in the city and county. Many cases of chickenpox which were of a light nature were unreported.
